

Are you our new social entrepreneur?

Are you interested in applying your sales and marketing skills in an artistic, socially-critical environment? Do you want to take part in transforming an art project into a sustainable social business project? Do you enjoy working in an interdisciplinary team? Then you might be just the right person for an internship position at our anti-discrimination project THROUGH DIFFERENT EYES.

THROUGH DIFFERENT EYES is a unique diversity project. The idea is that the individual participant, with the help of make-up artists and actors, takes on a different skin color or gender for one day. THROUGH DIFFERENT EYES was created in 2011 by actor Morten Nielsen. It started as an ambitious art project in Denmark and then also developed on an international platform, with partners such as the Curitiba Festival in Brazil and the culture house Katuaq in Greenland. Recently the project has increasingly been integrated in diversity trainings in other sectors. One example is the collaboration with Denmark's biggest trade union 3F. Due to the very positive responses to that development we are now seeking to further the work on transforming THROUGH DIFFERENT EYES from an art project to a sustainable social business project - and this is where you come into the picture.

Your tasks:

- determining and addressing new target groups
- contributing to the extension of an international network of collaboration partners
- development of sales strategies in an interdisciplinary team with a student from an academically socio-political background
- proactive communication tasks (website, social media, relevant magazines etc.)

You offer:

- desire for working with social change, equality, anti-racism, anti-discrimination
- skilled and empathic with face-to-face, telephone and written communication
- able to think both socially as well as commercially
- experienced and comfortable in dealing with sales tasks
- skilled at networking
- competent in working both independently and in team work
- skilled in time management
